46th Annual UCLA Entertainment Symposium

About the Entertainment Symposium

The Annual Entertainment Symposium is a flagship event for the entertainment industry, bringing together hundreds of leading executives, lawyers, agents, managers and producers with students for candid discussions on subjects at the forefront of the industry. This year's sellout event will convene virtually, gathering top executives and some of the brightest legal minds to illuminate current trends and challenges facing the industry today.

Conversations during this multi-day conference have ranged from lively debate over the changing landscape of the entertainment business, to shared insights for the success of original content in a vast digital landscape, and perspectives on filmmaking in newly developing markets. Past keynote speakers have included Jason Blum, Bryan Lourd, Meg Whitman with Jeffrey Katzenberg, Stacey Snider, Mark Cuban, Barry Meyer, Clint Eastwood, and Morgan Freeman with Lori McCreary. Panelists regularly include top entertainment executives and lawyers from studios and production companies.
